

ADOPTION PROCESS

Thank you for expressing interest in us!

Adoption is a serious commitment for you, your family and for us. When adopting a bird, you are agreeing to provide them a nurturing, caring environment. You agree not to take this commitment lightly. Our adoption procedures are in place to ensure that our birds are placed in only the best environments and with families that will commit to them and love them for many years to come. Thank you for your patience, please understand that we care deeply for all birds in our care and only want what is best for them. The attached application is an important part of the process. It will help to determine whether you and your family can provide a suitable environment for our parrots in accordance with our standards and protocol. Please be advised that Enchanted Bird Sanctuary cannot guarantee the health of any bird. When a bird comes to us, more than likely it's had many owners and the background given to us may be incomplete or simply just not true. If the bird shows any noticeable signs of illness during their quarantine period, we do get them seen by an avian vet. However, as most parrot owners and sanctuaries will tell you, many birds do not exhibit signs of illness until they are very ill. We do recommend putting your new parrot in quarantine away from any other birds for a period of 30 days. We cannot guarantee that the bird will not bite. A new environment, new people, new schedules and new sounds and everything will stress a parrot out until it gets used your family and home. Any parrot, even the tamest, will need time to adjust before it starts bonding. We recommend that you take it slow and watch for signals. With time, love and trust many parrots are won over by their new families.
